CENTURY

Starting off the new policy of the Century theater to play a program of first class pictures, instead of the old Mrs. Owen Moore in real life, and vaudeville, the management has secured a particularly pleasing bill, which includes drama, comedy, adventure and thrills, as well as time for news and educational features. The program which will be offered for three days, starting tonight, will be changed daily, with today's featured star, Thomas Santschi, in a red-blooded tale of the western plains entitled "Beyond the Trail" and filled with action and suspense. Edgar Jones, clever juvenile comedian, is co-starring with Little Hay Spool in the adventurous comedy of two-reel length "Lochinvar O' the Line." Harold Lloyd will amuse with his comedy antics in "Rough Seas," a comedy with numerous pleasing marine vignettes. A wild animal film showing how lions are captured by aeroplane and the latest Pathe News, are other features.

TEMPLE

The dramatic crises in both New York and Paris were set in a whirl of speculation by the recent announcement that Marguerite Namara, the famous young American singer, had decided to give up her operatic career for the bigger and wider motion picture world. Miss Namara as a child gave early evidence of possessing a voice of rare quality and range. After an extensive training in this country and under the famous instructors in Paris, Miss Namara immediately took a place among contemporary operatic artists with Geraldine Farrar and Mary Garden. All three of these talented women are not only great singers, but great actresses as well. As an actress Miss Namara, in the opinion of metropolitan critics, easily outranks her sisters of the operatic stage.
